DISEASE SPREAD BY IMPURE WATER

Unsanitary Conditions of Supply Used by Some Passenger Carriers Must Be Remedied.

By Dr. W. C. Rucker:

Death and disease spread by impure water on boats and passenger trains has reached a point where the public's attention should be called to the danger. In many cases within my knowledge short trips during which this polluted water was drunk have resulted in epidemics of sickness.

A certain railroad which has been notified that its water has been found unsanitary has been feeding its passengers with bacteria by the million.

A test showed there were 15,000 bac-A test showed there were 15,000 bacteria to the cubic centimeter, a cubic centimeter being about a quarter of a teaspoonful. This water is drawn for use of passengers from a spot where a sewer empties into the common basin

Conditions of passenger-carrying vessels in the Great Lakes are little better. Recently nine cases of typhoid were removed to a hospital, all of which were taken from Great Lake vessels. Another instance of foul water occurred during an outing given by a life insurance company to its agents.

The trip took up several days, and a great many of the passengers were seized with acute intestinal disorders. Several now have typhoid fever and several are dead. Like instances may be cited in a naval militia boat just returned from a summer's cruise with several cases of typhoid, and an outbreak of typhoid aboard a Mississippi, River steamboat.
